Principal's Message....

The not so good and the great.....

Last week I was in Wellington at a conference being held at Te Papa. I was shocked at the number of vaping shops in the CBD. There is an absolute misunderstanding with the youth of today that vaping is not bad for you or nowhere near as dangerous as smoking. Quite simply this is wrong. These Vaping shops have R18 access and that is for a reason. Vaping is a dangerous habit and is in no way the innocent or safe activity it is made out to be. I would strongly encourage you to click here to read an interesting article on vaping. At Glenfield College, our role is to help prepare our students for society and all the challenges that it can present, and it would be disingenuous of us not to highlight our concerns about this latest craze that is lulling the youth into a false sense of security.

Onto far more positive aspects of life at Glenfield, we are certainly meeting the key values that constitute the Glenfield Way. Last Friday Mr. Kuz and the Music Department embraced and modelled 'Service' when giving back to our community. The Metlifecare Retirement Home invited us to perform before dinner and were rewarded with performances from our music students (see article below). Then on the Saturday, with the winter sport season coming to a conclusion, we had the Junior Development team model 'Resilience' throughout what has been a challenging season. The school and the parents are very proud of how the young men have developed and grown over the season. Finally being 'Adventurous' could not be better epitomised than by the 20 young men and women who are currently down at Turangi attending the Hillary Outdoor Pursuits Centre. This really is a game-changer for those that attend and will have a significant impact on their own personal growth. Building on this all, Year 9 and 10 students received a letter this week informing them about the Year 9 and 10 Outdoor Education Camp being held at Shakespear Park in December. We look forward to all students being involved and recognising the importance of moving outside ones comfort zone. While in the first instance this may be challenging and difficult it is what we learn most about ourselves that makes the difference.

SCHOOL NEWS

Music Performance at Glenfield Mall

"BRAVO Tomasz and students. What a successful music event at Glenfield Mall. Fantastic atmosphere, especially seeing students (both current and ex-pupils) supporting one another."

A few weeks ago, Glenfield College and the Music department received an invitation to provide a musical entertainment for shoppers at Glenfield Mall. The students responded to this opportunity with enthusiasm, and on Saturday, 11th August, Glenfield Mall was filled with beautiful sounds produced by some talented young musicians.

The shoppers and passers-by were entertained with an array of pieces representing musical genres ranging from classical, jazz, pop, and rock, and delivered by school choir, jazz combo and various soloists. The solo performances featured Jack Jang (guitar), Reika Obata (voice), Keitaro Sasabuchi (violin), Michael Oborn (piano), and Izaak Hansen (electric guitar).

The Glenfield Mall show was a great success for both the school and performing students. It was lovely to see Glenfield community applauding the local musical talents and to hear positive comments about quality of the music and professionalism of the performers. Well done to GC musos!

Attitude Talks

Liz Harrex from Attitude spoke in five assemblies – one for each year level in Week 4. Topics were relevant to the youth of today, with an overarching theme of self-respect, humour, and ways to relate to others in a positive manner. Students responded well to her lively energy and anecdotal talks. They appreciated her ability to be vulnerable herself and share the life learning from her schooling years. Liz also shared ideas on how to stay happy and healthy in today's world of Social Media. Liz continued to promote the importance of Hauora and for students to seek support from those able to help. She mentioned Youthline in particular – Youthline is available on 0800 37 66 33 or Free Text 234. Glenfield College is pleased Attitude sent Liz as one of their representatives, as she did a great job in adding entertainment into learning meaningful messages for life enrichment.

Students Helping in the Community

On Wednesday and Thursday our students helped coach/referee at the Ripper Rugby (Glenfield Rugby), Auckland Primary Championships and the Basketball Interzones (North Shore Event Centre).

Big thank you to Jimi Latimer, River Kerehoma, Neihana Smith, Bataa Ganbat & Toni Paulo-Fox for helping coach/referee in our community.

The feedback has been very positive and the primaries/intermediates look up to you as role models.

Michael King Young Writers' Programme

Some of our students (and teacher, Mr Chris Blenkinsopp) recently attended an Ant Sang Master Class in Comics and a Non-Fiction workshop with Simon Wilson and Adam Dudding (photos above).

The Development XI played another well rounded game going down to Kaipara 5-2 draw, with goals to Julian Murray, who has had an outstanding season so far.

The Development XI played their last game of the season on Saturday against Takapuna. Although they did not get a win, they have shown so much resilience and have made massive improvements throughout the year. We will continue to build this team as it provides a pathway to the 1st XI

Match Report

Glenfield College vs Pakuranga

4-2 Loss (Crooks 7, 48)

Man of the Match: Benjamin Pankrath & James Crooks

The 1st XI played the unbeaten Pakuranga on Saturday, the boys found themselves ahead in the 7th minute with James Crooks finishing off a corner from close range. However straight from the restart were made to pay with some sloppy defending outside the box. Pakuranga went into the half 2-1 up, with the boys critical of their first half performance. The second half was a lot better, and can take many positives out of it, with a brilliant individual goal to James Crooks. However, it wouldn't change the outcome. Pakuranga 4 Glenfield 2. A lot to work on at training this week, as the team prepare themselves for Winter Tournament.
